PROEVER is software that accumulates the knowledge of management solutions that have supported the execution of project management especially for large companies.

With its free assessment web service "Management Score", MSOL has added a new service which allows users to predict the success rate of a project for free.

As a project management specialist, MSOL have developed an AI feature that analyzes and models the elements necessary for project success based on the actual data from the experience we provide project management services to our clients.

[Service Features]

- 1. Free service (Only 20 questions are needed to get the prediction results.)
- 2. Final success rate will be predicted based on information at the beginning of the project.
- 3. If users register the result of their project, a statistical report will be sent from the service.

Since most of projects that do not reach their goals often have problems from its start, information on the beginning
